

Inside story: Red Cross – behind the scenes of crisis
Wednesday 10 March 2010 at 7pm, doors open at 6.30pm

A talk by our Chief Executive & delegate Sandrine Tiller on their experiences within conflict and disaster zones.

Description:

Inside story: Red Cross – behind the scenes of crisis

A unique opportunity to find out what life is for the Red Cross helping in crisis situations - these are the stories that don't make the headlines. CEO Sir Nick Young and Red Cross workers will describe their personal experiences working in conflict and disaster zones across the world.

Tickets: £12. Book at ww.redcross.org.uk/lecture

Venue: Royal Geographic Society, 1 Kensington Gore, London, SW7 2AR
(nearest Tube station South Kensington)

For more information:

www.redcross.org.uk/lecture or contact Kate Crandon on KCrandon@redcross.org.uk or 020 7382 4650.

More information on our speakers:

Sir Nick Young, Chief Executive of the British Red Cross since 2001, will speak about visits he has made to Red Cross projects in the UK and around the world.

Sandrine Tiller has many years of experience working in conflict zones, particularly in the Middle East, where she spent seven years working for the Red Cross. Sandrine is now based at the British Red Cross Head Office in London working as a Humanitarian Policy Adviser.